Summer Building, Repairing Work Clips Job List

By Susan K. O'Neill

While Andover citizens took time off for vacation this summer, town employees were hard at work—building, repairing and resurfacing. Their labors did not produce spectacular feats of new construction, says Town Manager Kenneth Mahony; instead, they chipped away at an assortment of projects, big and small—the “stuff” that makes everyday life flow smoothly for the town and its residents.

“It’s been busy,” says Mahony. “But we did what was in our planning cycle. I’m pleased that we got it done, but I can’t say we did more than we had planned.”

Mahony says that the largest accomplishment, from a construction standpoint, has been the ongoing work on Memorial Hall Library. Construction on the new wing has progressed steadily over the summer, he says, although completion of the project will not come until late this year or early in 1987. “They’re still saying December,” he says. “I’m saying February.”

He adds that library functions will have to be moved into the new wing before the entire project is completed in order to accommodate renovations on the older portion of the building.

Mahony says that the town is still negotiating for the acquisition of a parcel land on Stevens Street, where it hopes to construct a new central post office facility. “Everything’s signed on both sides,” he says; “There’s just some problems with an easement.” No timetable has been set for the project.

The fruits of the season also include the following:

- The Tantalum Road sewer pumping station, located in the Shawsheen Village area, is near completion. The building itself should be finished by November, Mahony says; new connections between it and the system will be ready for use in “another year or so.”

- The Wood Hill Standpipe, a new holding tank which was completed last year for inclusion in the town’s water system, was put on line this summer. Mahony says that the old tank was taken off line, and is scheduled to be repainted and cleaned.

- The municipal maintenance building located behind the high school is “about finished,” says Mahony.

- The roof on the West Junior High School was replaced.

- Carpeting at South School was replaced, as was much of the interior lighting.

- In the high school, heating controls were replaced and workers are installing ventilation and air conditioning in the media center/office.

- The air conditioning has been replaced in the Public Safety Center (the police/fire building).

- The town has revised the car traffic pattern at West Elementary School, creating a one-way access off High Plain Road where cars traditionally entered as well as exited.

- Office spaces downstairs in the town hall have undergone remodeling.

- Paving has been completed on Shawsheen Road, Lowell Street, North Street and River Road.

- Drainage problems on Essex Street have been addressed.

- Traffic lights on River Road have been installed, and will be made functional when the electronic “controllers” are put in later this month.

- A 120-page transcript of the 1986 Town Meeting has been put on file in Memorial Hall Library; although it can not be checked out, it is available for study or photocopy.

- The Police Department has been put

DCS Sets Fall Programs

The Department of Community Services Fall Program booklet was mailed to Andover homes last week. New residents who may not receive one may pick up a booklet at the DCS office in Town Offices on Bartlet Street. The booklet describes the wide variety of programs offered by the department. Registration will be held Wednesday, Sept. 10, from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Doherty Junior High Auditorium (follow brick walkway from Central Park Bandstand to school entrance). Registration will continue each day at the DCS office from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. until classes begin. Classes begin Monday, Sept. 22, unless otherwise specified. Among the newer programs scheduled:

Monday: Learn the basic techniques of arranging, wiring and taping flowers and making bows in a five-week floral arranging class at Doherty Junior High School. Marcia Brown will have participants using silks, dried flowers, wildflowers and fresh flowers to complete five projects.

Prepare for the Massachusetts Division of Education's High School Equivalency Certificate in a 10-week G.E.D. course at the high school. Paul Crandall will offer two separate sessions, 3:15 p.m. to 5:15 p.m. and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. The course will put an emphasis on math and correctness and effectiveness of expression.

Consider racketball as a new fall activity. Learn the skills involved, plus practice during the playing time. Racketball begins September 29 from 7:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. A one-day Racketball Clinic takes place September 22 from 6:15 p.m. to 8:15 p.m.

Women's Gym is for those interested in playing some informal team sports and games. Wear comfortable clothing.

Tuesday: A ten-week course is offered at the high school for romance readers interested in writing. Sophie Glazer will guide writers from the original conception to the final stages of preparing a manuscript.

Introduction to Silk Painting is for those who love color and to be creative. Silk painting is very easy to learn, yet provides a wide range for artistic expression. Complete three wall pieces in an eight-week course taught by Elizabeth Tobin Mancino at the high school.

A three-week introductory home bartending course at the senior center will include the preparation of manhattan, martini, highballs and rock glass drinks as well as mocktails, frozen and layered drinks. Steve Carr will discuss a host's responsibilities and current laws affecting home parties.

Aerobikids is a super program for children in grades 1-6. It begins with warming up and good stretching and concentrates on exercising in a fun way to music. The program runs from 3:30 p.m. to 4:15 p.m.

She-Bop, designed for grades 7-9, combines calisthenics with stretching and aerobic activity. The course meets from 4:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. and is a terrific way of staying in shape and improving flexibility, balance, rhythm and coordination.

Wednesday: Local artist David Sullivan has returned with an eight-week course entitled Encounter Sessions with Modern Art. The program will be a discussion-exercitation course where participants will attempt to partake of the riches of art from an experiential rather than an academic perspective.

Establish body flexibility, controlled and increased breathing capacity and concentration ability in an eight-week Yoga course at Bancroft School.

A one-day clinic on Tennis Techniques on October 1 will include strokes, drills, play and tactics.

Learn about Sports Injury Prevention and Care in a one-night seminar, hosted by Sports Medicine Systems Inc., New England's oldest and largest sports medicine center.

Thursday: Ed Weil, the department's advanced securities and investment instructor, has developed four all new "how-to" programs at the high school. Register for one or the whole series. He begins with a two-week program, Investments and You, September 25 and October 2. Learn how to analyze your personality and needs, the spectrum of investment products and how to mesh the two into an investment program. Sophisticated Investment Tools and You,

October 9 and 16, will teach how to use stock options, index options, hedges and stop orders to reduce risk and increase gain.

Taxes and You, on October 23, is a look at the latest tax law and what it means to your investment strategy. The final program in the series Retirement and You on October 30 includes investment strategies as you approach retirement and after you have entered the retirement years.

Due to increases in life expectancy rates, more and more stress is being experienced by adult children already struggling to balance the

Choral Society To Rehearse

The Andover Choral Society begins its 57th season with its first rehearsal and open house on Tuesday, Sept. 16, at 7:30 p.m. in the rehearsal rooms of the Free Church, Elm Street, Andover.

In spite of its name, for more than half a century the society has been comprised of singers from all over the Merrimack Valley. ACS welcomes new voices to join the present 60 choral society members from Andover, North Andover, Methuen, Georgetown, Wakefield, Lynnfield, Lowell and Malden and Bedford, Windham, Salem and Newton, N.H., in learning the choral vocal technique while enjoying singing the world's great classic and contemporary choral music under the baton of George H. Redman whose expertise in music is in choral work.

Redman participated in music and drama at Andover's East Junior High School and Phillips Academy, graduating in 1975. He majored in music at Hamilton College (1979) where he was assistant director of the Hamilton College choir and director of the College Octet. He received his Master of Music degree in Choral Conducting in 1984 from the University of Cincinnati College Conservatory of Music, a school well known for opera and choral training. In addition to all the major undergraduate and graduate college choral ensembles, he has performed as a singer with the Cincinnati Vocal Arts Ensemble, the Gregg Smith Singers and the Cantata Singers of Boston. While his principal teachers have been Dr. Lee Spear and Dr. Elmer Thomas, he also studies with Robert Shaw, Roger Wagner and Margaret Hillis. Redman, a member of the American Choral Directors Association and the Association of Professional Vocal Ensembles, has assumed the faculty position of director of music at Tilton Academy, Tilton, N.H., as of September 1986.

The Andover Choral Society will dedicate its 1986-87 season to its founder and only other director, J. Everett Collins, who died August 8. The season begins with a concert on Sunday, Nov. 23. An orchestra and professional soloists will join the choral society in singing Mozart's "Ave Ver-num Corpus" and "Missa Brevis in D Major; Bach's "Kantata, N.R. 12 - Weinen, Klagen, Sorgen, Zagen" and Handel's "Foundling Hospital Anthem." A holiday concert in December will include the ACS's 57th traditional performance of the Christmas portion of Handel's "Messiah." The society will sing a winter concert in February and the second annual Spring Sing Pops concert in May.

Redman emphasizes that a prospective singer need not have to be able to read music to participate.

Auction

Noted Lowell appraiser and auctioneer Roger Durkin will join forces with the Lowell Historic Preservation Commission to stage a gigantic public auction at 11 a.m. on Sunday, Sept. 7, featuring local and surrounding-area antiques long hidden away in private homes. The auction will be held in the courtyard at Market Mills, 246 Market St., Lowell. Anyone who wishes to offer items for sale on a consignment basis should call Ruth Meehan at the Lowell Historic Preservation Commission.

Center Receives Grant

The Northeast Document Conservation Center in Andover announces that it has been awarded grants from The Massachusetts Council on the Arts and Humanities totaling $66,500.

This award includes $51,500 in Merit Aid Support to fund ongoing cultural programs and services to take place in Massachusetts. NEDCC was also awarded $15,000 for historic conservation to provide on-site surveys of conservation needs of repository institutions, as well as a series of workshops on the care of collections.

The Northeast Document Conservation Center is a non-profit, regional conservation center, specializing in the treatment of paper and related materials including documents, books, works of art on paper and photographs. The center also provides microfilming services. The center's work addresses the problem of paper deterioration that is rapidly destroying the record of the past now preserved on paper.

Some of the objects treated at NEDCC in the past year include Babe Ruth's contract with the Boston Red Sox, Louis Agassiz Fuertes' watercolors of the birds of Massachusetts and photographs documenting the construction of the Statue of Liberty.

For more information about the center, contact NEDCC, 24 School St., Andover.

Volunteers Sought For Training

Chances are that someone you know, family or friend, business or social acquaintance, has received care from VNA HomeCare Hospice. Hospice care is highly specialized and carried out by a unique team. An important part of that team is the hospice volunteer. These special people befriend and assist the patient and family during their time of need, and as long as they have a need, they will receive help and support. Whether it be taking a long walk with the spouse of a terminally ill patient, sitting and listening to family reminiscing or simply sitting in silent support, the volunteer is always there for the patient and family and fills a vital role.

VNA HomeCare Hospice is the only hospice in northeast Massachusetts to receive Medicare certification. According to David Duncan, volunteer coordinator, "With this certification and our overall growth, we urgently need volunteers who live in and around Haverhill to work with the many, many patients in their community." He adds, "The needs in Haverhill are great and we're calling on the community for support in the form of volunteers."

Training for the next class of Haverhill volunteers is set to begin Thursday, Oct. 2, and will run for ten weeks. Openings are available in the day and evening classes. Many topics crucial to the success of the volunteer are covered, including communication, the role of the volunteer, death and dying and life and living. Upon completion of the program, the volunteer will usually begin working with families in need in their community.

For information about the training, to sign-up or to recommend someone for the class, contact David Duncan or Connie Carroll.

VNA HomeCare Hospice's programs and services are utilized in communities through the Merrimack Valley and southern New Hampshire. Recognized for its leadership role, VNA HomeCare has consistently earned the support of the Merrimack Valley United Fund.

Enthusiastic Curator Moves To Where Old Dates Back To 1650

By Susan K. O'Neill

Clark Pearce grew up in the Midwest, where the "old" dates to the mid-1800's. Now, he's living and working in New England where, he says with relish, "something old is 1650."

Pearce has more than a casual interest in the "old"; antiquities are bread and butter to the energetic 33-year-old Michigan native. This May, Pearce became the director/curator of the Andover Historical Society. He replaced Marsha Rooney, who moved to Spokane, Washington, after serving in the position for eight years.

Before coming to Andover, Pearce—who holds the equivalent of dual masters degrees in American Studies and Museum Studies from the University of Michigan—last worked with the Texas version of "old." As curator of the McFadden-Ward House in Beaumont, a 1906 mansion that had been built by the state's first oil millionaires, he oversaw the restoration of the museum to its original decor. "I was responsible for everything in the interior of the house," he says, "from the paint in."

Pearce readily admits that Beaumont, Texas, and Andover are two different worlds. He still speaks with a touch of awe about the interest shown here by the community at large in its local and regional history, and about the openness and vigor of his new board.

"I came here because I was so impressed with the operation," he says. "It is an active, professional-minded organization, with a young board that is capable and willing to devote a great deal of their time. Also," he adds, "it's not a closed society in any sense."

He also came here, he says, because he wanted to live in New England. Prior to his move, Pearce had attended a summer institute at Boston University. He found himself returning for visits whenever he could. "I spent a lot of time in New England—my own personal time—because I love it," he says.

Now, Pearce lives, literally, in the midst of New England history. He resides on Boston's Beacon Hill and commutes daily to the Historical Society's museum and headquarters in the Amos Blanchard house at 97 Main St.

He speaks of his new job—and his new employers—with enthusiasm. There are, he says, two things the Andover Historical Society does especially well. First, the organization provides through its own collections and manuscripts a microcosm of the history of America. From the town's beginnings as a farm community, through its years as a stronghold of the early Puritan Congregational Church—when it instituted the conservative Andover Theological Seminary, while Harvard moved to embrace Unitarianism—to the era of the industrial revolution, Andover's own history reflects the history of a new and growing nation.

"The amazing thing is that it's all here, in the basement," says Pearce. "People do use it." The "it" refers to the more than 200 shelf-feet of historic manuscripts preserved by the Society—organized, filed, indexed and cross-referenced by the organization under Marsha Rooney. The "people" come from other towns, states and even countries—like the Japanese scholar who came to Andover specifically to seek out records of one of his earlier countrymen, a missionary who had brought Andover-based Christianity back to Japan in the mid- to late-1800's.

The Society's second special function, according to Pearce, is its role as an area educational resource, offering classes, house tours and school-linked programs in addition to its exhibits.

Pearce is lavish in his praise of Rooney's work, and he feels that his own special talents will fit in well in the continuation of what she has begun. One of his primary goals will be to add to the authenticity of the Blanchard House itself as an historic exhibit.

The Blanchard house is furnished to depict family life in the mid-1800's. Rooney once worked as an historical interpreter—an actress who researches and assumes an historically-grounded character to bring a particular setting alive—at Plimouth Plantation. She brought the interpretation concept, and interpretive tours, to the Andover facility.

In keeping with his background as a researcher of historical objects, Pearce will direct much of his attention to refining the setting of the house. "My background is more on the curatorial side," Pearce explains.

"I think history is like theatre," he says. "We've got to have the proper setting for the historical interpretation to be believable—to pique our interest. Most playwrights can't get away with no scenery, no stage sets. Most of us need to present our message with the proper backdrop." In describing his role in the drama of Andover's history as presented by the Society, he says, "Marsha wrote the play; I will be working on the stage set, in a sense—the backdrop—setting the scene for the historic tours that take place."

Pearce hopes to refine his set by reviewing public records of household inventories—which were made upon the death of a home-owner—to form a more complete picture of the era's furnishings and the exact mode of their use (e.g., the number of beds in a room; the use or non-use of dining areas). He is also having the walls of each room in the house analyzed scientifically to gauge the age of the paint layers, so that he can determine and reproduce the colors that were used between 1820 and 1840.

In addition to his work with the house, Pearce would like to make the museum and the Society more visible in the town and in the greater Boston area. "Right now," he says, "we're not as well known as we should be." He hopes to use his Boston connections to link the Society's exhibits, when possible, to those mounted at Boston museums. An example of this is his timing of a local exhibit of drawings and plans by Andover artist/architect Addison LeBoutillier, who worked in pottery in Boston, during a Boston Museum of Fine Arts exhibition of arts and crafts. "I plan to publicize it in Boston, probably through the GLOBE," he says.

Clark Pearce notes the detailing on a chest of drawers in the guest bedroom of the Amos Blanchard house

Pearce's publicity efforts might soon receive a significant national boost. On his second day in town, he joined Rooney in escorting members of an American Association of Museums accreditation team through the Blanchard house. The team's recommendations, which are still pending, could spell AAM membership for the Andover facility—giving it national credibility and listing it in the association directory. "Accreditation means that it's not just a sort of a 'mom and pop' operation, where you open the doors and have little exhibits to see and charge five dollars," says Pearce. "We're very hopeful that we will become accredited this year—Marsha has worked very hard to bring this museum up to the high standards of the Association."

Once attained, AAM membership requires periodic re-accreditation—which is based on further improvement and attention to standards. "It's a commitment toward future growth and

Named Austin Prep Headmaster

The trustees of Austin Preparatory School have announced the appointment of Dr. Frank Paul Gifune, Jr. of Marion as headmaster of the school. Dr. Gifune succeeds the Rev. Joseph F.X. Gillin, O.S.A., who has accepted a new appointment from the Provincial of the Order of St. Augustine.

Dr. Gifune has more than 20 years experience in teaching and educational administration in public and catholic schools on both the secondary and college level. Most recently he served as academic dean and in other administrative positions at Marian High School, Framingham. He has also been the superintendent of schools in the Whitman-Hanson Regional School District, the district principal of the Old Rochester School District, principal of North Attleboro High School, assistant principal at Wayland High School and principal of the American School in Lima, Peru.

In addition to teaching mathematics in public and independent secondary schools, Dr. Gifune has served as adjunct professor of educational administration and law at Lesley College, lecturer at the University of Lowell, associate professor at the School of Law and Labor Relations at Mass. Maritime Academy and associate professor of mathematics in the division of continuing education at Bridgewater State College.

Dr. Gifune did his undergraduate work at Fremont College and Hamilton College and earned an M.A. at Boston College. He has a doctoral degree in educational administration from the University of Florida and has pursued post-doctoral studies at Harvard University.

Dr. Gifune is the president of the Harvard chapter of Phi Delta Kappa and is listed in "Who's Who in American Education." He has served as president of the Southeastern High School Conference, chairman of the M.S.S.P.A. Academic Affairs Committee and of six evaluating accrediting committees for the New England Association of Schools and Colleges. He has been a panel speaker at the N.A.S.S.P. National Convention and N.F.S. Fellow at Boston College.

Dr. Gifune has served as president of his Parish Council and is a lector and Extraordinary Minister of the Eucharist. A native of New York, he is married to the former Carla Scala of Greenwich, Conn. They have two children, Kim and Greg.

In announcing the appointment of Austin's first lay headmaster, Charles H. McLaughlin, chairman of the board of trustees, pointed out the dual advantage to the appointment: the school has a professional lay educator in the headmaster's office and can concentrate its Augustinian resources to a greater extent in the classroom where they will have greater contact with the students.

American Perspective Offered

Historical and literary perspectives of America and New England will be the focus of several courses offered through the Merrimack College Division of Continuing Education this fall.

Using the wealth of local resources and sites, students will be able to approach the American experience from historical, political, sociological or literary starting points.

Lawrence and Lowell will provide the living backdrop and laboratory for The American City, to be taught by Dr. Clarisse Poirier, assistant professor of history. Enthusiasts of the region's earlier history will be able to develop their interests in American Colonial History course which will examine the social, religious, political and economic dimensions of America's first settlements. American colonial history will be taught by Dr. Katherine Campbell.

The literary achievements of some of New England and America's greatest artists, including Nathaniel Hawthorne, Herman Melville and Emily Dickinson, will be discussed in American Romanticism. Dr. Kathleen Shine Cain, assistant professor of English, will lecture on the major essays, stories and poetry of the American Renaissance.

Dr. John Dalphin, author of "The Persistence of Social Inequality in America," will examine theories on the social fabric of this country in Social Class in America. The plusses and problems of the urban environment in America, finances, urban renewal, education, human resources, poverty and transportation, are the topics to be discussed in Urban Sociology, taught by Prof. Frederick Peterson. The course is designed to put students in touch with the crises of the ever-changing urban landscape.

This being an election year, Campaigns and Elections will be a particularly timely course. Dr. Eugene Declercq has developed expertise in state and local politics and will examine such topics as voting behavior, fund raising and campaign ethics. Another offering in the political science area, Contemporary U.S.-Japanese Relations, will provide broader focus on America and the tremendously important social, economic and political relationships which have developed with Japan since World War II. Dr. Bruce Stronach, an expert in international trade and American-Japanese relations, will be the instructor.

Further information on these and the almost 100 courses offered at Merrimack is available from the Division of Continuing Education, Merrimack College, O'Reilly Hall Room 209, North Andover, MA 01845.

Appointed Community Counselor

Susan Birrell of Andover has been appointed community counselor for the new Au Pair in America program, sponsored by the American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation of Greenwich, Conn. The foundation has been designated by the U.S. Government as the first organization to sponsor a cultural exchange/child care opportunity.

Birrell previously owned and operated her own business. She will supervise the Au Pairs, young British and English speaking Europeans who will arrive in the Andover area in September to participate in a cultural exchange program and assist with the child care needs of host families.

Birrell will interview prospective host families, organize cultural functions and counsel the 20 to 30 Au Pairs who will live with host families for one year.

The foundation, a non-profit, educational exchange organization which has been involved in youth exchanges since 1967, provides an orientation, medical insurance and facilitates educational opportunities for the Au Pairs. The foundation is an affiliate of AIFS, Inc., a publicly-owned company which provides program services for the foundation.

Andover area families who wish to host an Au Pair or learn more about the program can contact Birrell or write: Au Pair in America, American Institute for Foreign Study Scholarship Foundation, 100 Greenwich Avenue, Greenwich, Conn. 06830.

BABY TALK

by Jack Resnick

Most new parents have an instinctive reaction when their baby cries. They drop whatever they are doing. They rush to the child's side. They try to determine if the infant is wet, hungry or in some sort of discomfort, and they take steps to remedy the situation. If they find nothing apparently wrong, they generally pick the child up in their arms and soothe the child by hugging and kissing, giving the child a sense of security. This is perfectly normal and natural. You will not spoil your baby this way. There is no way to "spoil" a child during the first six months of life.

There is a large selection of baby furniture available at TINY TOTLAND. Open 9-5:30. Mon. & Th. 9-9. We deliver anywhere. Toys for all ages... "heaven to seven". M/C & Visa honored. Free lay-away is available at TINY TOTLAND, 1111 Elm St., Manchester, N. H. "Where Quality Costs You Less."

Kitchen Design

by David A. Clement, Designer

U-TURN

A U-shaped kitchen, as its name indicates, has three sides. Customarily, these are three of the walls of the room. Often, however, a peninsula is added to make a "U" out of what otherwise would be an "L". The objective of a U-shape is to place a work area on each side, making a well-balanced equilateral work triangle. U-shaped kitchens usually work best in fairly good sized rooms. Sometimes, however, there are efforts to squeeze one into dimensions that are too tight. The base wall or middle leg, of the U should be at least 9 feet long. This provides the desirable 5 feet of clearance in the middle after the cabinets are installed.

No matter what shape your kitchen is in the experts at WIND-

SOR KITCHENS can transform it into a workable, efficient room. We have cabinets made with the utmost care and quality and carry top name appliances. We also give you creative designs to fit in with the way you work in your kitchen. Let us work with you first at 1181 Boston Rd. Ward Hill. Just for Women

At Lawrence General Hospital.

Introducing A Woman's Healthcare Center at Lawrence General Hospital...your resource for services, information and education on the healthcare concerns of today's woman.

Since our founding in 1875 by the Ladies' Union Charitable Society of Lawrence, the health and welfare of women have been among our major concerns. Today, that original commitment is still a driving force behind Lawrence General Hospital. Our Woman's Healthcare Center takes us in a new direction that brings together all of our services for women and offers you a central point of access. Our services range from health education, to sophisticated medical and surgical services, to those special touches that sometimes only women notice and appreciate.

One of the many services being offered by the Center is a newsletter, A Woman's Health. Each issue will feature an in-depth report on a current women's health concern. For your free subscription write or call A Woman's Healthcare Center at Lawrence General Hospital.

To celebrate our opening, we will also send you a free copy of Lawrence General's Emergency Care Guide, a comprehensive first aid book for use in the home and office.

Tucker Featured At Program

Representative Sue Tucker was the featured speaker at an Internal Revenue Service employee program designed to commemorate Women's Equality Day, the 66th anniversary of the 19th amendment granting women the right to vote.

According to Fran Laughner, an Andover resident who manages the IRS Federal Women's Program, more than 300 employees gathered to hear Tucker describe the long and hard battle for voting rights which spanned several decades.

Topics ranging from pay equity to women in politics were discussed during the question-and-answer session. "It was a wonderful way to celebrate Women's Equality Day," Tucker said, "and the IRS deserves credit for sponsoring such employee programs."

Town Gets $901,820 From State Lottery

Massachusetts cities and towns received $375 million from the lottery in the last fiscal year, nearly 20 percent of all local aid delivered to the 351 communities, State Treasurer Robert Q. Crane has announced.

This is an increase of $63,963,706, 20 percent more than the previous fiscal year's total of $311,798,529.

"What this means today is that nearly one dollar in every five reaching communities for local aid comes from the lottery," Crane said.

The town of Andover received $901,820 from the lottery this year.

"The original law establishing the lottery directed that it be operated for the benefit of the cities and towns and we have carried out that mandate," Crane said.

"From a modest beginning of $22 million net for the first nine months of operation in 1972 the lottery has earned $1.4 billion for the cities and towns through June 30, 1986," he said.

The $375 million earned for the cities and towns is distributed in three ways.

The law establishing the lottery included a direct aid formula which distributes the proceeds from the Weekly Game, Instant Games, Daily Numbers Game and a small amount from Beano operations to the 351 cities and towns twice yearly. Checks are sent with each community's share in June and December. That totaled $175 million in fiscal 1986.

When the Arts Lottery, Megabucks, was established in 1982, the law provided that the first $3 million in net income be made available to the State Arts Lottery Council for distribution to local arts councils. That amount was raised to $5 million recently.

The remainder of the net income is sent back to the cities and towns through the normal local aid channels and that totaled $200,762,235 last year. That money is then factored into all of the distribution formulas for school aid and general government.

Church School To Begin

Sunday morning church school classes will begin at the Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover, 6 Locke St., on September 14. The religious education program is the responsibility of the religious education committee, but, according to Marian Perregaux, religious education coordinator, "our church school depends on the support and cooperation of the total church community and volunteer teachers." Starting with infants and toddlers, children and youth are offered Sunday morning classes and youth group activities. "About Your Sexuality," a curriculum designed for junior high youth, will be offered in conjunction with the North Parish Church in North Andover and the Haverhill Universalist Unitarian Church. Another important component of the church school program is helping others in need through a variety of service projects. The children will continue this year to support a child from the Dominican Republic.

While one of the goals of the program is the understanding of religion, it is more important that our children "catch" religion which they can use to make moral choices and find responsible answers in their own lives, according to Mrs. Perregaux.

Church school begins at 10:30 a.m. with all but the youngest children worshipping with the congregation before going to their classrooms at 10:45 a.m. Children join the adults for refreshment following church school and the worship service.

Homecoming At South

Rally Day, the homecoming celebration of South Church, begins Sunday at 9 a.m. in the sanctuary at 41 Central St., Andover.

Youngsters and adults will be introduced to this year's church school theme, "One Step at a Time," and will have an opportunity to register for classes and meet their new teachers.

Worship and Communion will begin at 10:30 a.m. and mark the return to the pulpit of senior pastor Westy Egmont, who has been studying at Oxford University.

Rally Day At Church Sunday

Rally Day and start of the fall term of the church school will be observed at the Ballard Vale United Church (a United Methodist and United Church of Christ congregation) this Sunday. The theme is "Come to the Sunday School. An adult class meets at 9:30 a.m. with classes for children at 10:30 a.m. Bibles will be given to all new third graders. A class for youth will meet on Wednesdays at 7 p.m. and a youth fellowship program for junior and senior high youth will meet on Sunday evenings. The senior high youth will have a picnic at 5 p.m. while the junior high youth will meet at 6 p.m. for a cook-out at Rec Park. New families in town who wish to register their children for church school may do so by calling the church office.

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Andover is a liberal church in the New England tradition of Emerson and Thoreau. Services are held at 6 Locke St., in downtown Andover, one of the town's most historically significant buildings. The church purchased the building in November 1985 from the November Club, thought to be one of the oldest women's clubs in the nation. Church members painted the exterior over the summer. Other renovations, including a garden-play area in the rear of the church, are being addressed by the building committee, chaired by Spencer Johnson of Andover.

A fellowship coffee hour follows the program. All are welcome.

More than 1,000 public baths could be found in Rome by the fourth century.

on its own computer this summer; the Fire Department will follow soon, says Mahony.

Among projects that are still pending are the replacement of street lights in Shawsheen Village and the rebuilding of Ballardvale sidewalks. The town will meet this week with the electric company concerning the lights, says Mahony. And the sidewalk work, delayed due to an initial inaccessibility of the required granite curbing, will go out to bid this fall, with construction slated for next spring.

Work on the Old Town Hall is still at the "talk" stage, says Mahony. "Hopefully, we're going to have a meeting or two in the near future to see what people think about it, if they think about it."

The winds of summer have also brought a wealth of potential industrial development—most of it in the form of additions to existing buildings—to Andover. According to Mahony, Raytheon, Digital, Hewlett-Packard, the Andover Savings Bank, the Andover Corporations, Physical Sciences Laboratories, the proposed Courtyard by Marriot hotel, and Trammell-Crow "either have now, or will have by the end of the year, building plans before us."

He added that the Board of Health is currently working to formulate operating regulations for plants that specialize in genetic engineering. "We've had two firms expressing an interest in locating here," he explains.

Because of this development, says Mahony, "it looks like we'll be putting in traffic lights at Dascomb and Frontage roads." The project is strictly in the planning phases, he says, and the lights have not yet been designed.

Also being studied is the feasibility of installing a "walk" light at the Elm Square intersection, says Mahony. He anticipates that the question—possibly involving a four-way stop "scramble" system—will come before the Board of Selectmen in the near future.

Finally, Mahony commends the town's new Parking Committee on its work—evidenced primarily at this point by parking-limit signs that have sprouted on residential streets this summer. "They've worked hard at it, and they're certainly conscientious. I've tried to do to the extent possible what they're rec-

Police Ask Public Assistance To Continue Solving Breaks

By Karen L. Day

The Andover Police Department has been waging a successful battle against housebreaks recently, resulting in the arrests of two individuals believed to be responsible for numerous breaks in the Lovejoy Road area and in the vicinity of Yardley Road and Tewksbury St.

William H. Bourque, 80 Dascomb Road, was arrested on Friday, Aug. 15, for a single breaking and entering/larceny charge related to a housebreak on Lovejoy Road, and has since been arraigned on that charge. According to Detective-Sergeant John Houlihan, Bourque's possible involvement with other similar occurrences in the area is being investigated and he "will be charged with several other housebreaks" and all charges will more than likely be consolidated into one trial.

Houlihan commented that there have been extra patrols of the area, but that a "community watch" effort by the residents of Lovejoy Road would be helpful, especially on weekend evenings when most housebreaks are occurring there. He suggested that residents contact the Police Department if they notice even the smallest thing out of the ordinary.

Eleven days after Bourque's arrest, on the morning of Monday, Aug. 25, Andover Police arrested Anthony M. Cooper of 59 Galvin St., Somerville, for breaking and entering.

An officer observed a blue van parked on the roadway in the vicinity of Yardley Road and Tewksbury St. The van was familiar to the officer who had reason to believe it had been used in another re-

Teacher Charged In Assault Case

Andover High School history teacher Philip E. Nelson, 49, of 98 Cedar St., Wakefield, has been arrested by Belmont Police and charged with attempted kidnap, indecent assault and battery, and assault and battery by means of a dangerous weapon. The charges resulted from an incident at the Belmont Country Club at 10 a.m. on Tuesday, Aug. 26.

According to police, Nelson allegedly assaulted a 20-year-old female in the Belmont Country Club parking lot.

Police report that a man attempted to drag the victim into his van. An employee of the club saw the man standing over the woman, who was on the ground at the time, and came to her aid. He was joined by another employee, and the two restrained the man until police were summoned to the scene.

When police arrived, according to Lieutenant Joseph Griffin, the victim was bleeding from a wound to the head. Griffin also commented that the man had been harassing the woman for about two weeks preceding the incident, but she hadn't viewed it as a serious problem, and thus, had not contacted the police. She was held in the hospital overnight for observation.

Nelson was treated for an abrasion

Emerson Dropping Land In Andover

By Susan K. O'Neill

The use of Andover land for the location of dormitories has been ruled out by Emerson College in its proposed move from Boston to the banks of the Merrimack River.

According to William Harrold, Executive Director of Public Relations for the College, the decision not to use the land off River Road, which was included in the initial relocation plans, was made in early spring, after discussions among college officials and representatives of the city of Lawrence and the town of Andover.

As now planned, said Harrold, "The initial stage of building involves 77 acres of land. That is all in Lawrence. The entire campus is 100 percent in Lawrence, including student housing." He added that the Lawrence land use is being planned as an urban renewal project for that city, and that the inclusion of land from a second town would be "much more cumbersome, probably not do-able."

Harrold said that Emerson has been

Andover Firefighters Collect To Defeat M.D.

Over $5,700, $1,600 more than last year's total amount, was raised this year by 30 firefighters who are members of the International Association of Firefighters' Union, Local 1658 to help "Jerry's Kids" in an effort to defeat Muscular Dystrophy over the Labor Day weekend. Off-duty and some on-duty firefighters, with the cooperation of the Andover Fire Department, covered the Elm Square area for a total of 20 hours on Friday and Saturday asking for donations from motorists and pedestrians when they stopped for a red light. Firefighter Shawn Mason, union vice-president and chairman for the Muscular Dystrophy collection drive, organized the Andover firefighters' Crusade last year, officially joining thousands of firemen across the country who this year raised over four million dollars. Photos clockwise from upper left: Bob Sheaf shows one of the stickers handed-out to donors; Larry Pierce accepts a donation; Dan "Buckwheat" Guillet receives a donation from eleven-year-old Bridget Mason as her friends, Jennifer Kito-wicz, 11 and Erin Sullivan, ten, look on; Jack Aiello takes a contribution from Andover Police officer; Scott Gorrie and Jim Cuticchia empty the boots used to collect the money; Jim Landry, president of the union, approaches a motorist for a donation as a fire truck heads back to the station; Frances Gallant and Kevin Moore handle the task of counting the money; Lieutenant Richard Hartman hands a sticker to motorist as he drops a donation in the boot.

Welcome Home

For those who have spent a summer sojourn to varied resort areas, we offer a hearty welcome home and briefly review what you may have missed on the Andover scene during the soggy, cool, summer weeks.

It is good news to report that there have been no new fees for permits or town services imposed during the summer, an unusual occurrence.

This is probably true for two specific reasons, first and foremost being that there is hardly anything left in the way of user fees, permit costs and other financial impositions on which to place additional funding possibilities.

Secondly, the no new fee policy has been made possible by the fact that the selectmen apparently joined all you summer sojourners in taking off for the vacation season.

This august body of policy makers and administration overseers met only once during the summer, then rather briefly.

Why only the single meeting remains a mystery. One would suppose that even if business is dull and drab during the summer months, there would be the occasional necessity to gather officially occasionally just to make sure someone is minding the store.

But being Andover, one must suppose that even those who pledge themselves to public service are deserving of a total summer respite from official duties.

And, while you were away, we added another hazardous experience to deal with.

With the reintroduction of skateboards in the community, one must now dodge these wiggling wheelies as they cavort over sidewalks and streets, particularly in the downtown area.

Making matters even worse, these skateboarders have apparently joined those males and females who run around the streets at night in their underwear (joggers) hardly visible to motorists as they pursue their physical fitness bent.

It's bad enough to maneuver country roads in the dark without having to contend with skateboards and joggers.

Finally, let us note that the flowered barrels along the business section of the town have been well maintained by merchants and others this summer. The decorative, floral greeting is a welcome addition to the downtown area.

Other than that not too much has happened since June. You'll find traffic about as bad as when you left, particularly on Saturdays. There are a few less parking spaces in the downtown area and there are some limited parking areas, along with the metered spaces. The meters, by the way, still have that mysterious magnet attached which lures the attendant the moment the violation flag pops up, thus netting the motorist a fine. Some things never change.

In any event, Welcome Home!

Down The Years With The Townsman

75 Years Ago — September 1911

The School Committee held their first meeting of the school year on Tuesday evening of this week. Only routine business was transacted.

A meeting of Andover Grange will be held next Tuesday evening. The subject for the evening will be "Poultry."

The Natural History Society trip to Marblehead, which was planned for last Saturday and had to be postponed on account of the rain storm, will take place tomorrow.

Two well-known local men created considerable disturbance on Main St. about midnight last night, as they were returning in an automobile from Lawrence. Both were badly intoxicated.

The Murch estate, consisting of a large double house and a cottage house, on the corner of Whittier and Summer streets, has been purchased by John Stack. Mr. Stack and family now occupy the smaller house.

50 Years Ago — September 1936

The town of Andover, with a small percentage of the voters visiting the polls, threw most of its support to the candidates who led throughout the whole state. On the Democratic ticket, Curley led Greenwood by 275 to 103 for the senatorial nomination, while Henry Cabot Lodge scored a landslide victory over his opponents for the Republican nomination.

A petition for the removal of two trees adjacent to the corner lot at Main and Chestnut streets was rejected by Tree Warden James Buss after a hearing Tuesday afternoon. The trees in question were the elm on Main St. and the maple on Chestnut St., the large corner tree not being involved.

A total of 31 new voters registered at the Shawsheen registration Wednesday night. Other new voters will register next Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 p.m. in Precinct 4, at Grange Hall.

G. Edward Buchan, who headed the Civil Service list in the recent examination for permanent firemen, has been named driver at the Ballardvale engine house to take the place of the late Louis J. Kibbee. Buchan has been acting as substitute driver for almost a year.

On Tuesday afternoon and evening, Andover Grange hall was thrown open to the annual fair which continued through Wednesday, when the door prize of a radio was awarded to H.L. White of Reservation Road.

25 Years Ago — September 1961

Three homes on Kirkland Drive were burglarized over the Labor Day weekend, it was revealed Wednesday by Sgt. Robert Deyermund. He said that $200 in cash, a Polaroid camera and an 8mm movie camera were taken in the triple breaks.

Public schools opened this morning with enrollment once again at a higher level than the preceding year. In preparation for the opening, the faculty held a series of meetings on Tuesday and Wednesday.

The 250th Anniversary Committee of South Church has announced that the guest minister at the morning worship service Oct. 15 will be the Rev. Richard R. Niebuhr of Harvard Divinity School.

Andover will hold its special primary Oct. 24 in only one precinct, with hours for balloting set from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. All voters will go to the fire station—the usual polling place for precinct one—it was voted by the selectmen.

An around-the-clock patrol of Route 93 will be carried

Appreciative

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

Andover's Post 8 American Legion baseball organization wishes to publicly express its thanks and sincerest appreciation to Phillips Andover Academy for its generous support and cooperation during the recently and successfully completed 1986 baseball season.

American Legion baseball provides the premier summer baseball program for talented Andover youth up to the age of 19. The team was again generously allowed to utilize PA's excellent varsity diamond and its associated facilities on a non-interference basis for all its numerous practices and home games.

Special thanks are extended to PA's athletic director, Paul Kaulkstein, for his enthusiastic support of the program and also to Chuck Lane and his fine ground maintenance organization for the excellent field maintenance and for usage of the batting cage, foul poles, scoreboard, etc., throughout the season.

The availability of PA's fine baseball facility did much to enhance another successful legion baseball season and, as manager of the team and as the spokesman for and representative of the Post 8 American Legion organization, the coaches, players, parents and numerous supporters of the team, I wish to publicly express our sincerest gratitude and acknowledgment to PA, Paul Kaulkstein and Chuck Lane for their support and encouragement.

Andover and its youth are indeed fortunate to receive this magnitude of cooperation and support from Phillips Andover Academy.

Negotiate Compromise

To The Editor Of The TOWNSMAN:

The Merrimack Valley is my home and Emerson College is my school (Class of '50).

I have a great deal of pride in and love for both.

Surely the Elks, Emerson College and the City of Lawrence can keep their cool, sit down together in friendly fashion and negotiate a creative compromise.

I believe in happy (bl)endings. Why not Lawrence, Emerson College and the Merrimack Valley?

19 Years Ago — September 1976

Buoyed by a distinct upward swing in achievement test scores, the Andover School Committee Tuesday night endorsed a new goal: that the scores of all achievement subtests top the 70th national percentile by the spring of 1978.

Andover voters stayed away from the polls in droves Tuesday, in a primary election which had some dramatic results. Only 20 percent of the town's registered 14,063 voters participated in Tuesday's election, 2,172 Democrat and 668 Republican ballots being cast.

The Andover recycling program continues to be a successful method of collecting and putting into reuse newspapers, corrugated cardboard, tins, aluminum and glass. Tonnage of materials picked up has increased steadily: May 118 tons, June 136 tons, and July 142 tons.

The selectmen suggest the postal authorities consider locating on the Andover Savings Bank property or possibly consider acquiring abutting property to the present post office building on Main Street.

The Andover Chapter, American National Red Cross, will hold a special meeting of the general membership on Wednesday, Sept. 15, at 7:30 p.m. in the Chapter House at Four Punchard Avenue. The meeting will decide what actions the chapter will take regarding cuts in funding by the United Fund.

Warriors Get Ready

The Andover Warriors girls' swimming and diving team, who were Merrimack Valley Conference Champions from 1981-1983, are developing their strategy for a winning season as they prepare for their first match on Sept. 17 at Westford High. The team, consisting of 55 swimmers and divers this year, under the coaching of Patty Barrett who will be starting her sixth season, ended the '85 season with a record of 5-2. The Warriors hold on to a near perfect record of 31-4 during an overall five-year period. Andover All-Stars Win Tourney

The Andover All-Stars swept through the North Andover tournament with a 4-0 record to capture the championship for the second straight year.

Andover 9 - Riverside-Bradford 3

Andover was in control from the very start, jumping to a 7-0 lead after four innings and hanging on for a 9-3 victory. Mike Daley went the distance for the winners giving up three earned runs on six hits while striking out nine and walking only one. He also led the offense with three hits and was voted MVP for the game. Other offensive leaders were Bob Sheehan (two hits), Dave Livingston (two hits), Mark Hopkinson and Ron Rygwalski.

Andover 7 - Lowell 2

Mark Hopkinson pitched five strong innings, allowing one run on one hit. Scott Eggert mopped up in the final inning. Andover broke open a scoreless game with a five-run third inning to secure the win. Daley and Sheehan led the hit parade, along with Ben Russell. Aaron Lang played a five overall game. Hopkinson's outstanding pitching and a RBI earned him the MVP honors.

Andover 8 - Chelmsford 1

Pitching was again the key as southpaw Jim Hanning shut down the Chelmsford attack with a two-hitter while striking out six. Leading the offensive attack was Russell (three hits), Sheehan (two hits), Mike Famiglietti, Hopkinson, Livingston, Daley, Rygwalski and Eggert. Chris Lembo had a fine defensive game. Hanning earned the MVP honors for his fine effort.

Andover 4 - Chelmsford 0

Chelmsford fought their way back to the championship game which they lost 4-0. This game provided outstanding pitching and defense. Daley went the distance, striking out seven and walking only one. Sheehan greeted the first pitch thrown to him in the first inning and sent it over the left field fence. The game remained 1-0 until the sixth inning, thanks to some outstanding defense by Eggert, Sheehan and Tom Torrisi. Andover struck for three runs in the top of the sixth in clutch hitting by Daley, Hanning, Hopkinson and Eggert. Eggert was voted MVP for his three defensive plays and a RBI single.

Mike Daley was voted the Andover MVP for the tournament based on his two wins as pitcher and his team-leading batting average.

Andover Netmen Bow

There were two Andover contestants in the Essex County men's tennis championships at the Willows Racquet Club, Turnpike Street, North Andover, over the Labor Day weekend. Players from Kentucky, Maine, West Germany, New Hampshire, India and other parts of Massachusetts also competed.

Andover competitors were Warren Patterson of 75 Cheever Circle, who lost to Robert Miller of Cambridge, and Timothy McQuade, 75 Elm St., who lost to Robert Rauseo of Saugus.

It was perhaps the strongest tournament in this long series with Madhu Nair of Madras, India, seeded first. He was the top ranking 18-year-old in all of India two years ago. Patrick McGee of Lexington, Kentucky, was second seeded and defending champion Chris Post, formerly of Andover, now of Natick, was seeded third. Joachin Hammer of West Germany was fourth seeded, followed by 15th ranked John Niceforo of North Andover, sixth 1985 runnerup Phil Maloney, Jr. of Quincy, seventh Robert Rauseo of Saugus and eighth Ronald Lafond of Suncook, N.H.

Post lost the semifinals to McGee 6-1, 6-4 and Nair lost the other semifinal to Hammer 6-4, 3-6, 7-5. McGee took the final round from Hammer in a hard-hitting battle 6-3, 6-0.

Defending champions Niceforo and Maloney won the doubles gaining the top ranking in New England for 1986 play. They competed in the required four tournaments and won them all. Niceforo has won for four years straight which has never been done before in this championship. He won in 1993 with William Cashman of Madison, Conn., in 1984 with Wayne Peterson of Amherst and in 1985 and 1986 with Maloney.

In doubles semifinals: Niceforo and Maloney, Jr. defeated Tom Glenn of Burlington and Sam Harper of Chestnut Hill 7-5, 5-7, 6-3; McGee and Robert Miller of Cambridge defeated Nair and Buster Fortin of Bridgewater 6-2, 6-3; In the finals: Maloney and Niceforo defeated McGee and Miller 6-4, 4-6, 6-1. They are old school partners and coordinate their team effort almost to perfection.

The tournament was first held in 1903 at the Oldtown Country Club on Parker River in Newbury, moved to the North Andover Country Club in 1919 through 1985 and moved to the Willows Racquet Club this year as the North Andover courts were not available.

Cooper In Golf Tourney

Dorothy Cooper of Andover will tee off against approximately 75 local golf champions in The Boston Globe Women's Tournament of Club Champions September 5 at the Oakley Country Club in Watertown.

Cooper claimed her spot in the tournament by winning the championship at the Andover Golf Club where she was also champion in 1985.

This year marks the first women's competition in the history of the annual Boston Globe Tournament of Club Champions. Sponsored in conjunction with the Women's Golf Association of Massachusetts, the 18-hole stroke play event is open to champions of member clubs throughout the state.

Swim Team Tryouts

The Andover-North Andover YMCA will hold tryouts for the 1986-87 season during the week of September 9.

Sixty-four members continued on to the New England meet while qualifying nine swimmers for the National YMCA meet in Orlando, Fla.

New Horizons Group Returns From Understanding Exchange

Accompanied by Rev. James A. Diamond, the New Horizons youth group of Christ Church recently participated in a cultural exchange program with the youth of the White Earth Indian Reservation in Minnesota. After visiting the reservation, all the teens went on a camping trip at Banff National Park in Alberta, Canada. Next year, the Indian teens will come to Andover. Pictured from left, Tracy Burkholder, Kathy Anderson, Rev. Diamond, Beth Mollineaux, and John Bolis; in front is Mark Angelos. Group members not pictured are Vicki Anderson and Andrew Warren.

By Karen L. Day

Seven teenagers, members of the New Horizons group at Christ Church, recently returned from a 16-day trip to the White Earth Indian Reservation in Minnesota and Banff National Park in Alberta, Canada.

Kathy Anderson, Vicki Anderson, Mark Angelos, John Bolis, Tracy Burkholder, Beth Mollineaux and Andrew Warren were accompanied by The Rev. James A. Diamond on the trip that is organized to promote better understanding between the cultures of the Indians and the young people of Andover.

Rev. Diamond stated that he hoped that all the teenagers involved would be able to transfer the understanding they gained of one another to people of other cultures as well.

The group first went to the reservation where they met several Indian teens. Then the entire group went on the camping trip in the Canadian park.

Next summer, the seven Indian teens will join the Andover group here and they will visit Andover, Boston and sail off the coast of Rhode Island.

Beth Mollineaux "learned that people are all alike...we're treated different, but we're all the same. I went out there and got more aware of scenery and nature—I look at it more" here now that she has returned home. "It was such an opportunity to go out there," she says, "you wanted everything to be so perfect...you want to remember the fun parts and happy times."

John Bolis thinks that "it's a shame that they get walked all over." He would prefer to go back to the reservation rather than have the Indian teens come here. Beth looks forward to the visit saying that "it's our territory...no more camping!"

Mark Angelos just wants to make sure that the Indian teens get to see other areas, not just Andover.

All of the members are afraid that the prejudice against Indians they have felt since returning may make their guests uncomfortable. Many of the Andover teens have been hearing a lot of jokes about the Indians and about moccasins and jewelry they brought back from the reservation with them. One teen was even asked to perform a rain dance.

Soon after their arrival on the reservation, jokes made by one member of the Andover group brought about a discussion with one of the Indian teens who took the person aside and quietly explained that that type of humor was not acceptable to them.

All agreed that the bad times were necessary for the fun times the group eventually had together. It was one way of getting to know each other better. In that way, the program, now in its third year, served its purpose.

Analyzer Donated To Hospital

Youngsters who are patients at Lawrence General Hospital now have the newest tool in cystic fibrosis screening available thanks to a generous contribution by the employees of the Lawrence Division of Bay State Gas Company.

The employee group raised $1,300 with a one-day car wash in mid-June at their Marston Street location in Lawrence. Representatives from Bay State Gas Company recently presented the check to the hospital.

The new equipment, the Advanced Instruments Cystic Fibrosis Analyzer, requires a microsample of human perspiration for analysis, a distinct improvement over previous methods which sometimes required repeated sample collection. Both sample collection time and analysis time are reduced from a total of 90 minutes to 30 minutes.

In accepting the contribution, Calvin Johnson, vice president for professional services, stated, "The analyzer will greatly benefit our young patients by making this test more comfortable and less time consuming. Our thanks go to the employees at Bay State Gas Company for making this possible."

First Aid

The community health education department of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington is offering a Standard Multimedia First Aid Program on Tuesdays, Sept. 30, Oct. 7 and 14, from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. A special child care injury prevention session will be held October 21.

This particular series of classes will be geared to parents and other caretakers of young children. Special emphasis will be placed on chokesaving and rescue breathing, poison control, first aid to injuries common to children and fever control.

Participants will earn American Red Cross three-year certification.

Pre-registration is required and the class size is limited.

College Observes Anniversary

Merrimack College in North Andover begins its 40th year of educational service to northeastern Massachusetts and southern New Hampshire on Wednesday, Sept. 3.

"Merrimack's 40th year will be a time for celebration and reflection," said Rev. John E. Deegan, O.S.A., president of Merrimack. "It is my hope that the events and activities that have been planned for the 1986-87 academic year will be a celebration shared by the many people of the Merrimack Valley who were instrumental in the founding of the college and who have enabled Merrimack to grow and develop in the phenomenal way that it has. This 40th year should also be a time for us to look ahead to Merrimack's future, what the college should be and could be in the next four decades and seek the support and resources to make that future a reality."

Fr. Deegan said that a number of special events and programs have been planned. The new year officially begins Wednesday, Sept. 3, with a special Mass of the Holy Spirit in the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher on the college campus at 11:30 a.m. In this liturgy, the college community asks God's blessing on the new academic year.

Two major events have been planned for the spring. A special Mass celebrating Merrimack's 40th anniversary will take place in the Collegiate Church of Christ the Teacher on Friday, April 24, at 3 p.m. The liturgy will also celebrate the 16th Centenary of St. Augustine, a worldwide celebration of the Augustinian order marking the anniversary of the conversion of the order's founder, the great theologian, teacher and bishop, Augustine of Hippo.

A 40th anniversary dinner-dance will take place in the college's Volpe Complex on Saturday, April 25. Cocktails at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7:30 p.m. will be followed by dancing to the music of "Big Band Incorporated" until 1 a.m.

A number of cultural, entertainment and educational events are being arranged and a videotape on the first 40 years of Merrimack is being produced. A special celebration of 40 years of Merrimack athletics is planned for January 24.

Many of Merrimack's annual events, such as the annual college Christmas tree lighting and the St. Augustine Awards dinner, will be part of the 40th year celebration. The 1987 reunion weekend will feature special anniversary events for all classes.

Forty years ago a group of business and professional leaders of the Merrimack Valley met with Cardinal Richard Cushing with plans to open a Catholic college for the region. They sought to provide a Catholic college for the "new, non-traditional student" of the time, the G.I. returning from World War II. Enthusiastically accepting the proposal, Cardinal Cushing asked the Augustinian Friars at Villanova University to staff the new college that would bear the name of the river that was the lifeline of the region it would serve.

From a single building in 1947 that opened its doors to the first class of 165 students, Merrimack has grown to a campus of more than a dozen buildings spread over 220 acres on the North Andover hillside. The college begins its 40th year with an enrollment of more than 3,400 students: 2,100 in the day program and 1,300 in the division of continuing education. Merrimack's curriculum has grown to include academic programs in the natural and physical sciences, civil and electrical engineering, business administration and financial management, computer science, the social sciences and the humanities.

School Bus Law Signed

Gov. Michael S. Dukakis recently signed school bus safety legislation that will outlaw older, less safe school buses; substantially toughen the penalties for illegally passing a school bus; require that every school child learn bus safety; and mandate guidelines for passenger restraint systems in school buses.

The new legislation requires:

- the elimination by 1989 of all school buses built before 1977 when the federal government ordered significant structural changes in bus safety design;
- stiffening of fines for illegally passing school buses (from not more than $100 to not less than $100 and not more than $200) and license suspension for repeat offenders.
- increasing classroom instruction in school bus safety practices;
- installation of an additional mirror for increased operator ability to monitor activity outside the bus; and
- compliance of school bus seat belt installations with applicable federal safety standards for belts, buckles, anchorages and seats.

The Sport Shop: Everything for Fall Sports

You may already have received a call from your child's soccer coach, and you can't believe it's that time of year again. Fall is just around the corner, and with it come all those fall sports that require a variety of equipment and uniforms. Turn to The Sport Shop at 92a Main Street in Andover for all your sporting needs this fall. They carry the terrific "Andover" sweats seen in the photo above, as well as a variety of other items such as sweatshirts and sport bags that also carry the Andover name. The Sport Shop carries the largest selection of sport shoes in Andover. You'll find Nike, New Balance and Adidas among others, and you'll find every style needed for running, tennis, football, soccer and aerobics.

Fall is the perfect time to get out on your bike. The Sport Shop carries the top-notch Univega bike line. They also have a complete bike repair shop as well as bicycle accessories. Skateboards are still in this fall and the Sport Shop carries Alva, Variflex, Kryptonics, Sims and Madrid. Roller Blades are also still a popular item; they look like ice skates with wheels instead of blades that make travel on surfaces other than ice possible. Another item that is experiencing quite a revival is the scooter. The little red scooters we rode as children have been replaced by multi-colored, sleek machines equipped with hand breaks. The Sport Shop carries all these non-mechanized methods of transportation.

If tennis is your game, The Sport Shop carries Head, Prince, Yonex, Wilson, Donnay, Wimbledon, Yamaha, or Pro Kennex. They also offer the MacGregor Bergelin Long String, a revolutionary concept in tennis that gives you an all-over sweet spot and allows you to adjust your racket tension to fit your style of play. The Sport Shop is a complete sports store, and if your particular sport hasn't been mentioned here, you still may find what you need there. Visit The Sport Shop and find out for yourself. They're open Mon-Sat 9-5:30; Fri 9-8. For fans who take pictures of their favorite sports events, bring your photos to The Sport Shop for Kis 1-hour developing. Call 475-7176.

Creative Elegance: A Dressmaker's Dream

Suzy Coughlin has been sewing since junior high; she loves sewing. Suzy has been in retail since she was sixteen; she knows retail. "I put together what I know and what I love," says Suzy, and the result is a unique shop named Creative Elegance.

Opened in February, Creative Elegance offers fabrics not generally found in basic fabric shops. Their fabrics come from the garment industry and designer salons. They carry many imports including silks from Japan, wools from London, Swiss cottons and wool challis from Italy. Designer pieces by Albert Nipon, Christian Dior, and Karl Lagerfeld provide the elegance promised by the store's name.

Creative Elegance now has a dressmaker, trained in the "ulta-fit" method of fitting, who will be working with Creative Elegance fabrics. Customers can call for an appointment to consult with the dressmaker at no obligation. Day and Evening sewing classes are currently being offered at Creative Elegance. There will be a maximum of five students to a class. If your sewing skills are up to par but you have difficulty fitting a pattern, Creative Elegance offers a pattern fitting service to help you adjust your patterns to fit correctly. In addition, they'll try to help you with any other sewing difficulties you may encounter.

Creative Elegance is a fabric store with an unusual difference—they offer accessories for the clothes you make. In the way of jewelry they carry Hot Glass by Artistic Wear, unusual pieces by She Shells, and they currently have a 25% off sale on high fashion jewelry by Yves St. Laurent. Even if you don't make your own clothes you'll find the jewelry and designer scarves welcome additions to your wardrobe.

A variety of patterns by Butterick and Vogue can be found at Creative Elegance and Suzy invites you to sit at her table in a comfortable chair and peruse the pattern books to your heart's content. Visit Suzy on the 2nd floor at Park Street Village in Andover and sign the mailing list so you'll know about specials, sales and the 1 day seminars. Call 470-1198 for information. Creative Elegance is open Mon-Sat 9:30-5:30, Fri till 8:00 p.m.

Bay State Children Go Back To School

The doors of 1,796 public schools in 436 districts throughout the Commonwealth will open this week admitting an estimated enrollment of 846,430 Massachusetts school children, including 133,611 special education students, 25,408 bilingual and about 240,000 students in occupational education programs. They will be greeted by more than 70,000 teachers, according to State Education Commissioner Ron Raynolds who predicted that 1986-87 "will come to be known as the year of the teacher here in Massachusetts and in the rest of the nation as well." Raynolds, a lifetime teacher booster, forecasts "increased recognition of the teacher's role in our society" now and in years to come. "Teachers are members of a distinguished band of humans who throughout history are always in the forefront of human experience," he said. "No other profession can claim a more central role in the entire history of this planet."

Raynolds explained that a series of teacher forums aimed at eliciting ideas on the condition of teaching have been set for October, featuring addresses by key figures in educational reform in the legislature and profession, including Marc S. Tucker. The executive director of the Carnegie Forum on Education and the Economy, Tucker will report on the content of "A Nation Prepared: Teacher for the 21st Century," the highly regarded Carnegie Foundation report on teaching as a profession.

A teacher and principal panel will discuss with Tucker issues raised by the Carnegie report and Chapter 188, the School Improvement Act of 1985. The panel will include the Lucretia Crocker teachers, the 1986 Massachusetts teacher of the year, classroom teachers who are active members of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers and the Leadership Academy principals.

State Senator Richard Kraus and State Representative Nicholas Paleologos, Senate vice chairman and House chairman, respectively, of the Legislature's Joint Committee on Education, as well as Gov. Dukakis' educational advisor, Robert Schwartz, will join Nancy Finkelstein, president of the Massachusetts Teachers Association, and Paul Devlin, president of the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers, at the forums to be held at key locations throughout the state.

Massachusetts has made "great strides towards recognition of the teacher's key role in the shaping of a caring and informed citizenry," according to Raynolds, who was named the state's 20th commissioner of education this past June. He cited passage of the Public School Improvement Act of 1985, better known as Chapter 188, as "the most significant advancement for public education, for parents, administrators, teachers, children and the public-at-large in Massachusetts." He termed the legislation "a great success."

Fifty-seven million has already gone to the improvement of public education through that measure and $132 million has been earmarked for the various components of the measure this year. Raynolds noted that "306 Massachusetts school districts have opted for school improvement councils, 125 have raised the minimum teacher salary in their communities to $18,000, 384 opted for use of professional development grants and 129 availed themselves of equal educational opportunity grants."

Carpet Crafts: Service Second To None

If you like the idea of low pressure sales, you'll love Carpet Crafts "no pressure" sales. Steve Zaremba, an Andover native, and C.J. Bonfanti, a No. Reading resident, invite you to visit their showroom at 7 Bow Street, No. Reading center. You'll be offered a cup of coffee and invited to sit down and discuss your flooring needs. Steve and C.J. feel that the key feature of Carpet Crafts is the personal touch they provide.

For most people, buying carpeting is a serious investment, and shopping for the "right" carpet can be intimidating. At Carpet Crafts they put carpeting in simple terms so that people don't feel overwhelmed. When you visit Carpet Crafts you can relax and let the carpet professionals assist you in evaluating your needs and steering you toward the carpet best suited to those needs.

Steve, with 15 years experience, and C.J. with 14, have been in the carpet business long enough to feel they've come up with a successful formula. After observing the way other carpet businesses were run, they anticipated "if we do things the right way, the first time, we're going to stand out."

Carpet Crafts will come out to your home to measure, provide a free estimate, and advise you in any way possible. They provide sales, service, installation, and they'll even rent you a machine for carpet cleaning. Steve and C.J. recommend a "dry cleaner" carpet cleaning machine because it leaves no residue in the carpet. Carpet Crafts is an authorized Armstrong Carpet Studio dealer. In addition to Armstrong they carry lines from Mannington, Galaxy and Horizon to name a few. They also carry a wide selection of vinyl flooring. Carpet Crafts is open Mon-Wed 9-6, Th-Fri 9-8, and Sat 9-5. Call 664-0548 for information.

DECIPHERING ZONING MAP

If you are looking for a new home in a new area, it is possible that you have secured a zoning map of the town. The problem is - if you are not in the business of building or selling real estate, the zoning code numbers and abbreviations will make the map just about meaningless. Here's a quick course.

The general zoning abbreviations are usually "R" for residential, "C" or "B" for commercial/business, "I" or "M" for industrial/manufacturing, and "A" for agricultural.

Each of these classifications have subgroups. For example, "R-1" for single family residential; "R-2" for two-family houses; "R-3" for larger apartment buildings. Similarly, "M-1" may stand for light industrial use and "M-2" may refer to heavy industrial use.

Zoning regulations and classifications protect your buying interests. If you're purchasing a single-family home, you probably want to be reassured that a factory or shopping center isn't going to go up next door.

If there is anything we can do to help you in the field of real estate, please phone or drop in at THE HOWE AGENCY, 4 Poncharv Ave., Andover. Phone: 475-5100. We're here to help.

As many as 50 gallons of maple sap are needed to make a single gallon of maple sugar.

If you're in the process of buying real estate and have some questions... we have the answers.

INTERIOR ZONING

Interior zoning involves the logical arrangement of rooms in a house. Ideally, every house should have three clear-cut zones. They should accommodate the three primary types of activities: living, sleeping and working. The living zone should embrace the living, dining and family rooms. The work zone should embrace the kitchen, laundry and workshop. The sleeping zone should consist of bedrooms. Each zone should be separate from the others. A two-story house provides natural zoning and the benefits of separating the upstairs bedrooms and downstairs rooms. On the other hand, a split-entry house can create problems if the living and working areas are on more than one level. In some respects, lifestyle habits can over come poor zoning.

INC has built an outstanding reputation by satisfying even our most discriminating buyers. Drop by and talk with us whether you are planning to buy or sell in the near future. Our office is located at 8-10 Haverhill St. 476-3875. We are open daily, evenings and weekends.

HELPFUL HINT:

When entering a house, one should be able to go directly to any room without passing through a third room.

REAL ESTATE GUIDELINES

By Marilyn Vounessee
Realty U.S.A.
Schrander Real Estate

SELLER'S REMORSE

After just a week on the market, your agent has brought you a terrific offer to purchase your house, a little less than the asking price, but much more than you expected to get for the property. You meet the prospective buyers briefly when they saw your home, and they seemed really nice. They didn't ask for the family heirloom chandelier in the dining room, and said to go ahead and take the drapes to your new home. After your agent goes over the paper work with you, it looks pretty good, and you sign.

Then the agent leaves, you start to think about what you've just done, and you feel awful. You've been robbed! You could have gotten more! You know they'll let your garden go to seed and pull down all the beautiful wallpaper you hung yourself. Welcome to seller's remorse! This is a perfectly normal way to feel, especially if you're selling the home where you've lived for many years and that's loaded with memories. If you get a really bad attack of seller's remorse, call your agent right away. And remember, it's almost always temporary, and will be overcome with the excitement of moving to your new home.

For a move in your future, call Realty USA, / Schrander Real Estate's professionals at 685-5000 or visit our office at 73 Chicker- ing Road, in North Andover.

development," he says.

Pearce also hopes to further establish the museum's role as an educational resource to the Merrimack Valley as a whole. Amos Blanchard lived during the mill days, Pearce notes, and was a pioneer in the bringing of the railroad to Andover. His house offers a sampling of life during an era that is much celebrated by exhibits in other local communities; it is a link in the region's historical chain.

On a local level, Pearce would like to open the Blanchard house for more hours per week. He would like to computerize Rooney's inventory/index system, as well as the Society mailings; he would like to install a new phone system which would allow the Society more than its present single line. He would like to hire a contractor to work on the barn attached to the house, making necessary structural repairs; he would also like to hire outside experts to help set the area up for display once it is finished.

For all of these improvements, however, the Society will need money.

"Many people imagine that we have a lot of money," says Pearce, "that our endowment is more than we'll ever need. We have gotten generous bequests, but it is not enough, with the growth we've been experiencing."

In order to buy the computer, the phone system, the services of contractors and the advice of professionals, the Society is holding a major fund-raiser this November—an antiques auction.

For the event, the Society is soliciting donations of antiques—silver services, photographs, quilts, furniture, "anything that would be of interest to people to acquire," he says. Pearce is quick to note that nothing in the museum's collections will be sold off—"that would be unethical," he says—and that the donations will be reviewed by the staff first, to determine if they would be of value to the Blanchard house.

He urges potential auction donors to contact the Society as soon as possible. "We're trying to get a lot of the materials in by Sept. 15, so that we can publish pictures of them in a catalog," he says.

Clearly, with the November auction and further yet-to-be-scheduled fund-raising, the accreditation quest, and his planned work on the museum, Clark Pearce has stepped into the Andover Historical Society's 75th year to find his hands suddenly full. He is not intimidated; in fact, he is quick to assert that life is treating him very well. "I live in a very active and urban and stimulating environment," he says with a smile, "and I have beautiful Andover to come to, to work and look at the big old houses—and to help work on Andover's history."

And he has his primary goal—of which Pearce says, quite simply, "We're hoping to become one of the best little historical societies in the country. Marsha has brought us light-years toward this goal; I hope to continue this progress."

above the eye and was booked on the charges by arresting officer John McCune and arraigned in Middlesex County District Court.

Andover School Superintendent Kenneth Seifert stated that he has put Nelson "on special assignment...directly related to his teaching" outside the classroom. "I am conducting my own investigation," he said, "These are very serious charges." He added that the only information he presently has is what was contained in a newspaper article. "For the sake of Mr. Nelson and the school, (we will) get the investigation completed as rapidly as possible."

working with Andover and Lawrence for some time, attempting to convince officials of the Boston Conservatory of Music to move to this area. He said that Emerson officials considered the Andover land parcel, with its proximity to their site, a prime area for this possible move. If the Conservatory does not relocate to the site, he said, "Emerson may at some date in the future consider acquiring it and using it for expansion."

Town Manager Kenneth Mahony said that he did not feel the loss of Emerson's use for the Andover land would alter the positive impact of the move upon the town. He differed with Harrold's contention that the site has been targeted specifically for possible Conservatory use, but added, "We are, obviously, talking to the Conservatory. We've talked about various actions—but right now, it's just talk. I don't think any decision is real close."

cent house break. The officer notified other police cruiser units, and proceeded to investigate. He observed Cooper taking goods from the home and placing them in the backyard of the house.

When Cooper began to load the materials taken from the house into the van, he was arrested.

Officers Henry Picard and Dennis Lane, Detectives John Bernhardt and Kevin Winters, and Sergeant Steve Avery were all involved in the apprehension of the suspect.

Since his arrest, Andover Police have confirmed that Cooper is believed responsible for several other recent house breaks in Andover. Cooper was released on bail and was expected to appear in court on Tuesday, Aug. 26, but by noon-time, he hadn't appeared, according to Andover Police Lieutenant Richard Enos.
